Tuition and Costs

Girls Rock Vermont is a not-for-profit organization, which means we run entirely on volunteer time / energy and through donations collected during fundraising efforts. For this reason, your Camper's tuition is an important part of ensuring that camp is running each summer. The price of the camp was decided after reviewing what other camps in the area were charging for the same time frame and similar services.

Tuition is on a sliding scale between $50-$400.

A sliding scale is a tool to ensure folks have equitable access to experiences like GRVT's Summer Camp, regardless of financial resources. We ask for your active participation in deciding your contribution. If a sliding scale is implemented effectively, everyone pays a similar percentage of their income for tuition. This way, the cost of camp is not pocket change for some folks and a big commitment for other folks. While GRVT is a small organization, we make the sliding scale a priority because we acknowledge that we live in a world of differing privileges and income disparities. We can also provide lunch for campers and may be able to assist if there are transportation barriers.

The below chart is a suggested guideline created by matching annual household income with a suggested tuition payment, assuming a household of 3-5 people.

Yearly Household Income	Suggested Tuition Amount	Tuition Scale	Fairness Contribution
$100K and up	$800+	Full Tuition for your camper	PLUS Full Tuition for another camper+
$85-100K	$600	Full Tuition for your camper	PLUS partial scholarship for another camper
$65-85K	$400	Full Tuition for your camper
$45-65K	$300
$35-45K	$200
$25-35K	$100
$25K and under	0-$100
